Case Study

Therapists on the High Street is a new town-centre based Sports Therapy and Wellness Care Walk-in Clinic in The Broad Street Mall in Reading.

Brief

This new business took on the lease of a retail outlet in the shopping centre which was not suitable for the intended use. The open plan space needed to be split into areas for treatment rooms, offering a comfortable (and comforting) environment for clients, with the addition of a more welcoming reception area.

The Project

Working with the client, we planned the space to include four treatment rooms, with sound insulation a key consideration. Each room was designed with enough space for practitioners to work freely, as well as building in storage for equipment and products.

After

We also planned a new kitchen, office and staff area, leaving sufficient space in the main central reception area to be used as a stretching area.

The fit-out project included lighting, flooring, ceilings and electrical work, as well as refurbishing the existing air conditioning system. To complement the ideology of the business, we also supplied a height-adjustable reception desk with integrated lighting.
